WOOLWICH, MAINE: Enterprising Women Magazine has announced that NEMT President Linda Sullivan has been given Honorable Mention for the Enterprising Women of the Year Award.

Sullivan, who owns the Maine-based medical transcription firm, was selected out of hundreds of nominees from around the world. Enterprising Women Magazine received an unprecedented number of entries for this year's competition, which honors women who have demonstrated that they have fast-growth businesses, mentor or actively support other women and girls involved in entrepreneurship and stand out as leaders in their communities.

As the president of NEMT, Sullivan has piloted the company through an impressive growth rate of 33 percent, year over year for the last three years. That expansion has led to NEMT being named one of Inc. 5000's fastest-growing companies for the fourth year in a row.

"I'm delighted and humbled to be recognized by Enterprising Women," Sullivan said. "I've always followed the Enterprising Women of the Year Award with great interest and to be listed among the world's top entrepreneurs is an honor I never imagined when I started the company."

Before entering the transcription industry, Sullivan worked in a family newspaper business, international trading business, fitness business and several retail ventures. Twenty years ago, she began her career as a medical transcriptionist and launched New England Medical Transcription. Today, the company has more than 250 employees and contractors and provides transcription services and health information solutions to hospitals and clinics across the country.

As a finalist for the Enterprising Women of the Year Award, Sullivan has been invited to the ninth annual Enterprising Women of the Year Awards Celebration at Boca Raton Resort in Florida. There, she and the other award recipients will be honored for their contributions to business and commerce.
